Workjobs: Activity-Centered Learning for Early Childhood Mary Baratta Lorton

A workjob is a manipulative activity using familiar concrete materials from the child's world. This classic collection contains 104 math and language workjobs that explore primary concepts. Students develop critical thinking skills as they explore perception, matching, classification, sounds and letters, sets, number sequences, practice combining and separating groups, and relationships. Presented in an easy-to-use format, Workjobs includes a skills index, ideas on preparing for lessons, illustrative photographs establishing procedures and routines, record-keeping, and extension ideas. Grades K-2
