Rita Golden Gelman (b. 1937) is the author of more than seventy children's books and two adult books. Her memoir, "Tales of a Female Nomad, Living at Large in the World," was published in 2001 by Crown/Random House and it is still selling widely in paperback. In 1987 Gelman decided to sell all her possessions and become a citizen of the world. She has never returned to a settled life; she calls herself a "modern day nomad." She still has no home and few possessions. Eric Gurney (1910-1992) was a Canadian-American cartoonist and illustrator. Gurney is best known for his humorous illustrations in books for children and adults. His first wife, Nancy Gurney, was his collaborator on several books including The King, the Mice, and the Cheese (1965). He was also the illustrator of other notable Beginner Books including The Digging-est Dog and Hand Hand Fingers Thumb. In "Wet Cats", they collaborated on five delightful stories about..... wet cats! And their battles with the household mice.
