Not illustrated. 1848 Excerpt: ...its love--it speaks only in the melting language of the eyes, in sighs and tears." This is sheer popery. Those who know what it is to live in the habitual exercise of a kind and degree of piety which results from a " something supernatural," already infused into the soul by the sanctifying influences of the Holy Ghost, and whose every day existence is an exemplification of the power of faith, which depends not on the stimulation of the senses by merely visible objects of human construction, will smile with pitying concern, at that morbid piety which displays itself in tears and sighs, amidst the childish stage-play of such a scene as this. If there be anything more especially calling for jealous watchfulness, in these days of heresy and innovation, it is the tendency to prop up a weak faith, and to generate a mawkish sensitiveness on spiritual subjects, by externals--be they images, symbols, or ceremonies only. Our day at Bethlehem passed most happily; but I was glad to retire early--to a coarse bed, provided for me in a small whitewashed cell, which doubtless had been the abode of many a previous pilgrim, overlooking the convent garden planted with orange and lemon trees in full fruit. Perhaps I enjoyed my rude comforts the more, because I had been so long an absentee from regular beds and stone walls. Ought I not to be-content, and more than that, thought I, when I reflect, that here the child Jesus--my Redeemer, found no room for his reception; and that in the days of his mature and majestic manhood, he had not where to lay his head. Many a solemn thought and deep feeling occupied my mind, while 232 BETHLEHEM--VILLAGE OF THE SHEPHERDS. surveying the hallowed scene of the nativity; but it was when the stillness of midnight hung around me--w...
